Work permits

UK decision to invoke Article 50 of the TEU: More information

As an EU national you generally don't need a work permit to work anywhere in the EU.
Work permits are never required for self-employed people in the EU.

However, some EU citizens still need a work permit to become an employee in certain EU countries.
This only concerns:

- Croatian citizens in some EU countries
- some EU citizens in Croatia

Liechtenstein imposes quotas that limit the number of people who can work and live there. This quota system applies to nationals of all EU countries, Norway and Iceland.

Nationals of Croatia

Your right to work as an employee in another EU country may be restricted by transitional arrangements until 30 June 2020.

Most EU countries have dropped these restrictions. However, you may still need a work permit to work in Austria de.
